Somatic Systems Institute's Professional Training Program is conducted in three semesters. The first semester is more than 150 hours in length, over two 9-day "weeks". The second and third semesters follow a similar schedule. The three-semester course consists of 500 hours of training over approximately 22-26 months.

Class hours are generally 9:00 AM to between 5:00 and 7:00 PM, with 1- to 2-hour lunch breaks. There are occasional evening meetings (following a dinner break) before 9:00 PM. In developing the modular training courses, great care has been taken to create a class schedule which allows for a comfortable, successful learning experience.

Class sizes are carefully limited to provide personalized, close supervision and interaction between students & faculty, maintaining an intimate student to teacher ratio (ranging from 10:1 to 4:1).

Regarding late applications: We absolutely encourage you to submit your application, even if you have missed regular deadlines. Openings do occur unexpectedly, and application pools vary from year to year.

A NOTE ABOUT OUR ROLLING ADMISSIONS POLICY:

Applications are reviewed in the order they are received. Once an applicant is deemed qualified for the training program, priority of applicant acceptance will be determined by the dates their applications were received.

This does not mean, however, that submissions received after the deadline dates (listed in section above) will be discarded. In instances where an accepted candidate chooses to defer admission until the following academic year, the open slot will be filled by the most eligible of all remaining candidates, regardless of their application date.

As with any early decision process, and because space in the class is limited, it is highly recommended that all necessary materials be submitted as soon as possible.

ACCEPTANCE:

Payment is required to reserve your position in the class. For Early Action, application review will be expedited. Early Action payment due upon acceptance. Early applicants will still have the option to pay later at regular price instead.
